

Keystone MCF

M&A full time in Stockholm

With its current pipeline and strong order book, Keystone MCF is recruiting in Stockholm. This represents an opportunity for a successful candidate to join Keystone MCF's team and gain excellent transaction exposure on international cross-border deals. Keystone MCF offers an entrepreneurial environment where the professionals, while working together with colleagues from other offices, participate in all aspects of a transaction, including a great deal of responsibility early on.

Keystone MCF is looking to hire 1 full time analyst, with latest starting date January 2018 (applicants are evaluated continuously)

Candidates should have the following qualifications:

Although not a prerequisite, it is highly positive with relevant previous work experience, including:

- Experience in corporate finance advisory or investment banking, from either an international investment bank or another boutique advisory firm, or
- Relevant advisory experience from one of the Big Four accountancy firms

As well as

- An excellent educational background with a strong degree from a reputable university, preferably together with meaningful internships in relevant industries plus;
- Fluency in Swedish, preferably native speaker, as well as fluency in English

Depending on previous experience, candidates should ideally be well trained or experienced within financial modelling with advanced Excel skills. Additional language skills are not required but seen as favourable.

Keystone MCF likes to develop its employees rapidly and a successful candidate will have early exposure (relative to their position) to clients and will be expected to take on responsibility early on. It is therefore essential that candidates have both a keen willingness to learn and the confidence and strong interpersonal skills required to present to clients and colleagues.
